4-H leaders

by Jean Riddell

The aims of the 4-H Homemaking Program are to "help young people acquire habits, attitudes and skills useful for a happy and satisfying home and community life" through projects in foods and nutrition, clothing, crafts and fitness, to help members develop mentally, socially and emotionally.

Do you feel these are worthwhile aims for today's youth? If you do, take a few moments and consider being a 4-H leader for the fall project.

It begins in September and involves six, two hour meetings over a period of about ten weeks. Membership is open to young people aged 12 by September 1st for older (max 26).

Ontario ministry of agriculture and food provides project manuals for leaders and members. Leaders have the added help of a workshop that helps them to become familiar with the project before it begins.

At present 4-H leaders are needed for some of the existing clubs. We also encourage parts of the country, where 4-H Homemaking is presently not available to young people, to form new clubs. Four young people is the minimum membership required.

Interested persons should contact Jean Riddell at the Agricultural Office, (267-1063) for more information.
