ADHS grad has Ottawa's New Year's Baby

Dianne Stroud gave birth to her second daughter at 12:20 a.m. Jan. 1, making Elly Roberts Ottawa's new year's baby. Elly was born at the Ottawa Civic Hospital, weighing 7 lbs., 10 oz. She has a 15-month-old sister Olivia. Stroud grew up in Lanark Township and lives near Perth with her husband Jim Roberts. Stroud taught last year at Naismith Memorial Public School.

TYPS member Patric Egan accepts a $427 cheque from Valley Players president Terry Caron. The theatre group raised the money at the opening night of the play Steel Magnolias. TYPS will use the money to pay most of a month's rent at the Vent youth centre.

Naismith Foundation raffle helps basketball hall of fame

A raffle run by the Dr. James Naismith Basketball Foundation could land the winner in some of the Corel Centre's best seats.

The raffle, to raise money for the Canadian Basketball Hall of Fame, is being run with assistance from the local minor basketball association.

The holder of the winning $3 ticket (two for $5) receives 10 club seats with in-seat service at the Feb. 26 Ottawa Senators game with the Philadelphia Flyers. First prize also includes 10 Senators crystal glasses, Senators lapel pins, parking passes, copies of Bodycheck Magazine and line-up cards.

Second prize is two club level seats with the third prize winner receiving an autographed Senators jersey.

Tickets are available at local outlets or by calling The Naismith Foundation at 256-0492 or Basketball Canada at 748-5607. The draw takes place at Dave and Garry's All-Star Saloon Saturday, Feb. 22.

Don't be fooled by phony bank scam

OPP Report

By Const. Neil Fennell

The phony bank inspector scam has been around for ages. Unfortunately it still works.

Recently, an elderly female suffered the same fate many others before her experienced. She put her trust in the caring voice on the other end of the telephone. The man stated he was an inspector at her bank and he needed her help to catch a thief.

He convinced the unsuspecting victim that she could provide a community service by withdrawing money from her account and then meet him in the parking lot and he would take possession of the money. He would then follow up to catch the unscrupulous bank employee who was falsifying withdrawal slips.

No sooner had the victim returned home when she received a second call from the police asking her to withdraw valuables from her safety deposit box so that he can investigate internal theft in the bank. Convinced she was being a good citizen, the victim complied and turned over several valuable pieces of jewelry.

You know how this story ends. The victim lost everything. Gone, and so too is the mild mannered stranger.

Senior citizens are targets of this scam. Financial institutions don't conduct investigations in this manner. If there is any consolation, it is that this victim reported to police what happened to her. Many victims don't.

This crime and other scams leave behind real victims who have lost money and a whole lot more. There's also a loss of well-being and a terrible feeling of embarrassment and anger.

Share with family members who are elderly and perhaps alone, that telephone and mail scams abound. Hang up and toss prize claims in the garbage. It's the only safe solution.

Fundraising Christmas basket finds its way to the local Interval House

By Ryland Coyne
Gazette editor
Call it the Christmas basket's excellent adventure.

A fundraising program run by the local Navy League Cadets (NLCC Carleton Place #181) turned into a good lesson in generosity for the youngsters.

The cadets, aged 10 to 13 years, had sold $1 tickets at various locations around the area during the weeks leading up to Christmas. The winner would receive a full turkey dinner, complete with potatoes, vegetables, plum pudding, fruit cake, sparkling cider, and candy. There would even be some hand made decorations, a linen table cloth, four linen placemats and matching napkins.

The cadets' major fundraiser turned into a real success with 1,900 tickets sold. The bonus for the children, however, came when winner Doreen Whaley was contacted. Rather than accept her winnings, the Rideau Ferry resident chose to give back the prize to the community.

"She really had no thought of ever winning the basket," said Pat McLean, Executive Officer of the Navy League Cadet Corps. "She thought it would be nice to donate the basket to someone who needed it more than them."

The food and extra items were then turned over to Interval House where a worthy recipient was found before Dec. 25.

"It went to a family with quite a few children...with quite a range of ages," said Gerry Davies, co-ordinator of children's programs at the shelter. "It was very well needed and very well used."

McLean said it was a special moment for all involved to see the prize go to a worthy cause.

"It's not just a run-of-the-mill," raffle, McLean said. "It's the little basket that had a big trip, that ended up at Interval House."

Corps open for business

The local Navy League Cadet corps is open to any children in the Almonte/Carleton Place area aged 10-13 years, McLean said. The fledgling organization has 27 youngsters enrolled now, but is always looking to add to that number.

"We're hoping to get a little more publicity for the corps," she said.

The program, which is free to all participants, runs from September to June although new Cadets are welcome throughout.

"The nice thing is that they can join at any time of the year," McLean said.

According to the Navy League's brochure, participants learn important leadership skills. They're also taught elementary seamanship, ropework, use of compass, signals, boat and water safety (power and sail) and first aid. The program includes sports and games.

There are also special camps offered to the young participants during the summer months.

Cadets meet every Monday night from 6:30 to 9 p.m., at the Navy League building, 137 John St., in Carleton Place. For more information, call 257-7951.

Farm Record Analysis around for 50 years

This year marks the 50th anniversary of The Ontario Farm Management Analysis Project (OFMAP) in Ontario.

Staff of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs have been helping farmers to analyze their businesses since the first Ag. Reps. were appointed in 1907, however with the introduction of computer technology analysis has become much easier to do.

The primary objective of OFMAP is the preparation of computerized business reports for Ontario farmers. With these reports they are better able to analyze the financial and production results of their business and develop farm plans. With the advent of a spreadsheet program in the last few years, information can be input locally and reports generated immediately.

The individual reports contain common financial statements and ratios, including a comparison to provincial averages for that enterprise. Participating farmers also receive a five-year progress report for their own farm.

The second objective is to prepare group summaries for use by farmers, staff and agri-business personnel for comparative analysis and budgeting information. This provides a valuable data base for policy purposes such as the development of NISA. Over the years, group reports for beef, dairy and sheep have been generated for Lanark County.

The anniversary edition of the report is now available at the field offices of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs.

Director works for exporters

PERTH — Lucien Lalonde, Director of Economic Development for Lanark County, recently completed an extensive workshop on assisting local firms in developing new export market opportunities. The program which was hosted by the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade is in keeping with the Federal Government's Job Strategy. The objective is to get an additional 2,000 new exporters by the year 2000.

The program is designed to provide a seamless network of trade services and information. The county department will have access to market information and intelligence to assist local companies in determining merits of targeted foreign markets. The data will access rules and regulations, business practices and probability of entering a foreign market successfully.

The Trade Account Executive program will provide a one-stop service centre which includes diagnostic tools that can assist firms in determining their export readiness. The computerized program facilitates the process through a series of questions that provides a print-out for further analysis. Having the program locally, provides access to business networks, national sector teams, bilateral business councils, export marketing consortia and trade associations.

Another component of the program consists of accessing the International Business Opportunities Centre (IBOC). This resource centre is mandated to significantly increase participation of Canadian companies in international business by effectively and accurately responding to foreign buyer demands for products and services. Among the many tools available is Winternet.

This database contains a reliable and up-to-date information on over 23,000 Canadian exporters. As the information is updated through the county department, this data will be distributed to over 1000

Winternet users in the Canadian missions abroad.

"My department is committed to providing our businesses with every possible opportunity to expand market opportunities. As a trade account executive accessing these new tools, providing a one stop resource centre will add greatly to Lanark County's growth prospects," Lalonde said.

The program will be operational by the end of January 1997.
